

A Partnership Rooted in Security and Trust

THE SEARCH FOR A TRUSTED CUSTODIAN

Managing and securing cryptocurrencies presents unique challenges given the nascent nature of the market. With prominent exchange scandals, political and regulatory changes, Cyber Capital sought the highest level of security and reliability to secure their assets.

“When we launched in 2016, the custody solutions in the market were very limited. We ultimately built our own self-custody solution, involving three bank vaults across various cities. Our security protocols were designed to enable safe self-custody and had been stress-tested by experts. To be able to handle custody and maintain the highest standards possible for our clients was challenging given this was not our core business and we already knew back then that exchange risk was one of the risks we wanted to minimize,” said Alexander Werkheim, CEO.

The firm evaluated many potential partners for the role of custody provider but found that they were not compliant with the bar they had set for their fund. They required a best-in-class partner with experience navigating the evolving digital asset environment, but many providers failed to live up to expectations.

In 2021, Cyber Capital evaluated and selected BitGo Trust Company, Inc. as their custodian due to its reputation for robust security measures, regulatory compliance, and institutional-grade services.
